With featured speakers:

Robert King of the Angola 3 and Azadeh Zohrabi of Legal Services for Prisoners with Children

“Hard Time” is a film about Robert Hillary King, the first freed member of the Angola 3. King was a political prisoner who spent 29 years in solitary confinement in the infamous Louisiana State Penitentiary at Angola.

On Oct. 1, 2013, Herman Wallace became the second member of the Angola 3 to be released following the overturning of his 1972 conviction.

Wallace had spent 42 years in solitary confinement. Tragically, Herman died of liver cancer just three days after his release.

The film focuses on racism and human rights in the U.S. penal system, and draws attention to the plight of King, Wallace and Albert Woodfox, the remaining imprisoned member of the Angola 3, who has also been held in solitary confinement for more than 40 years. Together they had created a prison chapter of the Black Panther Party inside the most notorious prison in the U.S. to fight for better conditions, security for inmates and justice. (2012, 40 min.)
